THE COMING CITY ELECTION

At the coming city election in Daly City, three members of the City Council will be elected. The terms of Mayor H. H. Smith, Arthur J. Dalton and Julius Twesten expire. Each one of these City Fathers is a candidate to succeed himself.

In the interests of our readers, and especially those who are voters, a representative of the Record interviewed each one of these candidates one day this week.

His first visit was to Arthur J. Dalton. Mr. Dalton is a new member of the City Council, having been appointed about year ago to fill the unexpired term of T. F. O'Rourk, who had been a member of the City Council for many years and who resigned to accept a position in the sheriff's office in Redwood City. The first impression made by the dignified bearing and gentlemanly manner of Mr. Dalton, and by the thorough knowledge of the city's affairs which he displayed, was that the other members of the City Council certainly made no mistake in appointing him to assist in the conduct of the affairs of the city.

He was born in this locality 31 years ago, the son of John Dalton of 225 Niantic avenue, who was a life-long friends of the late John D. Daly. Mr. Dalton, Sr., began work for Mr. Daly nearly 50 years ago; he then went to work for the Spring Valley Water Company on Mr. Daly's recommendation, and worked for them until November of last year, when he was pensioned, after 45 years of service. He was a very prominent figure in the early life of this community and of the county, and the son, Arthur, seems to have inherited and profited very much by that knowledge and experience. There is also a brother, John Dalton, now living at 78 Hillcrest Drive, and a sister, Collista, who lives with her father and mother at 225 Niantic avenue. Arthur's school days were spent in Colma; afterwards he attended high school, following which he studied law for three years. Inside work did not appeal to him, so he took up railroading and worked as a fireman and engineer for several years. He is still a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. His ambition and abilities led him to give up railroading and to enter the tea and coffee business for himself. An opportunity presented itself and he sold that business and started in the real estate and insurance business, four years ago. His splendid personality, business-like conduct, gentlemanly manners, and square dealing, soon won him a large number of friends and the business profited from the beginning. He was secretary-treasurer of the Mission Real Estate Board several terms.

COUNCILMAN A. J. DALTON

Previous to his appointment on the Council, Mr. Dalton had been urged time and again by his many friends to run for that office, but feeling that the city was in very good hands, he declined to do so. One of his many outstanding good qualities is loyalty to his friends and the city which he now serves so well and faithfully as City Councilman. Looking back to the time of his appointment, we remember the many compliments that were paid the board for their good judgment in selecting such a representative to fill Mr. T. F. O'Rourk's unexpired term. It was, probably, one of the most popular appointments ever made in this community. All of his interests are here. He has much property in Daly City and is one of our progressive builders.

The Record is perfectly satisfied that Mr. Dalton is the right man in the right place, and in the interests of the community recommends that he be retained on the City Council.

The writer's next call was on Mr. Julius Twesten, proprietor of the Spring Valley Market and Grocery, at 198 Los Banos avenue, which he has conducted for nine years. Mr. Twesten is the youngest member of the City Council in point of service, having been appointed a few months ago to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Thomas P. Moran, who had served many years as City Councilman and who was well known and loved by every man, woman and child in Daly City.

Coming into the city a thorough stranger, it was only a short time before Mr. Twesten was associated with practically every good movement in this district. His natural business ability, far-sightedness and congeniality were soon recognized and won him many friends, and he shortly began climbing the ladder of success in a business way, and in various appointments, such as Captain of Company No. 2, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department, Fire Commissioner, president of the Daly City Veteran Firemen's Association, high school trustee and City Councilman. He has been an active member of Company No. 2 since 1921. His standing among the men in his own business is attested by the fact that he has been treasurer of the Daly City Merchants' Association since 1922. Mr. Twesten has been a taxpayer in Daly City for eighteen years. His investments are all here, which manifests the confidence he has in this community.

As was natural to be expected, his appointment as City Councilman met with practically unanimous approval by the people of Daly City.

Mr. Twesten is the father of three children who have attended the schools in this district, and his family is one of which the community may well be proud.

The general consensus of opinion is that in the appointment of Julius Twesten, a very fine and capable man has been selected to guard the interests of the people of Daly City, and the hope is widely expressed that the public will elect him by a handsoem majority in recognition and appreciation of his public spiritedness and the efforts he is always willing and anxious to put forth for the proper development of this city. Mr. Twesten has been successful in all his undertakings. His small business of nine years ago is now one of the most thriving and prosperous in Daly City. His neighbors say that no one has ever seen Julius Twesten without a kindly word and a happy smile. He is a natural leader and business man, and the people of Daly City are to be congratulated that a man of his ability would offer his services to the city and his fellow men.

The writer then visited Mayor H. H. Smith, who has the reputation of being one of the most efficient mayors and natural civic leaders in California.

He is a modest man and unassuming in his ways, this mayor of ours, and it was with some dififculty that the writer got him to answer questions about himself or his work. He learned, however, that beginning some forty-seven years ago, our mayor spent his childhood days and early life in Napa county, where he engaged in farming. He moved to San Francisco in 1906, and went into the teaming business. In connection with his work he moved several of the earthquake refugee houses to this locality, and seeing the bright future for this district, decided to go into business here in 1908. The first location was on Los Banos avenue, then called Los Angeles avenue. He had two partners in the business, S. G. Pope and Walter H. Martin. The hard work, long and strenuous efforts necessary to keep things going soon discouraged both of the partners and the business was taken over by the present owner. That it was really a small business is shown by the fact that Mr. Pope's interest was purchased for $135, and later Mr. Martin's interest was purchased for $300. No one who ever lived in this community had more faith in its future, or worked harder for the success he had attained, than has our mayor.

Mayor Smith has a charming wife and a delightful family of three girls and two boys. Two of the girls are graduates of the Jefferson Union high school and are now doing post graduate work in Armstrong's College at Berkeley. Two others will graduate from the high school this year. The fifth member is 4 years old. A visit to the mayor's home when all of the members of his family are present deoes much to explain the genial dispostion and infectious smile for which he has become so widely known.

When asked for the secret of his success, Mayor Smith replied that it was due to perfect health, ability to do a lot of hard work, ambition to get ahead, pride to succeed in anything he had undertaken, and last, and most important, the good loyal support of the people in this district, whom the mayor considers the finest people in the world.

We learn through other sources of the active interest he has taken in every movement for the upbuilding of this community for the past 22 years. We learn that he has been an active worker from the very beginning for the splendid schools and some of our excellent school sites of today; and that he is always in favor of any proposition for the upbuilding of the community. He has shown remarkable foresight when planning for the future of this city, as seen in his advocacy of the present location of the high school, now universally conceded to be one of the finest school sites in the state.

Mr. Smith was appointed mayor when first elected to the board in 1918. The development of Daly City since that time is ample proof that the City Council used good judgment in its selection. They must have recognized at that time in Mayor Smith the quality of leadership which has since become known not only to the people of Daly City, but throughout the county and the entire state of California.

The writer, looking back over the many years of experience in other communities and comparing them with the years spent in Daly City, is of the opinion that much of the remarkable progress and development in this community, especially in late years, is due to the contentment and satisfaction of the people with the economical and efficient way city affairs have been conducted under the leadership of Mayor Smith.

Mayor Smith has always taken a stand for what he thinks right, regardless of the consequences, either politically or in a business way. It is a very commendable thing, and one that, in connection with all the others, so well qualifies him for mayor of this city. The writer can see not a single reason why every vote cast in Daly City should not be cast in favor of Mayor Smith when he comes up for re-election.

The present City Councilmen are working in perfect harmony, and as near as we can learn, Councilmen Dalton, Smith and Twesten have the unanimous endorsement and recommendation of every member of every branch of the municipal and school governments, and we consider this the highest compliment and the greatest recommendation that could be given anyone.

The final conclusion of the editor of the Record is that the pre-election peace and quiet in Daly City is due to the fact that Daly City enjoys one of the most harmonious, business-like and efficient administrations to be found any place in the Union. And we would urge a continuation of this state of affairs by the election of City Councilmen Dalton, Smith, and Twesten.

CLOTHING AND BOOK DRIVE BY THE CROCKER P. T. A.

Bring clean clothing, books, magazines, newspapers and tinfoil to the Crocker P. T. A., Daly City Theatre building, any afternoon during the week of March 3 to 8, between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock.

The clothing and books will be turned over to the Student Aid shop in San Mateo, where they in turn sell for a small sum or give the clothing to needy families. The funds obtained this way are used to supply students with necessary equipment that would otherwise have to leave school and work. This enables the students to complete their education. This is one of the finest things being done by the members of the P. T. A.

The tin-foil and newspapers will be sold and the money placed in the treasury for general expenses.

If unable to bring bundles at time given, telephone Delaware 0790 or Randolph 1579, and the P. T. A. will be glad to call for them at your convenience.

You are invited by Crocker P. T. A. to drop in during the week, look over their literature, and perhaps you will find something that will interest you. These little booklets are freely and gladly given you.

ROYAL NEIGBORS ENTERTAINED

Mrs. A. Romer, of Brunswick street, entertained the members of Vista Grande Camp, R. N. A., on Tuesday evening, February 25, at her home. Bridge and whist were the diversions of the evening. A delicious repast was served by the hostess to the following: Mesdames White, Smith, Putney, Landini, Gehringer, Twesten, Friman, Jorgensen, Hedvald, Rampi, Nelson, Appleton, Scott, Romer, Bergensen and Romer. Mrs. E. Keller was the guest of honor.

SEWERS CARE FOR HEAVY RAINFALL

Last Monday evening there was a regular meeting of the City Council, all members being present, Mayor H. H. Smith presiding.

The street committee reported that the side sewers and catch basins were in good shape, easily and conveniently taking care of the abundance of rainfall that we have had during the past few days.

The chairman of the water and light committee reported that with the aid of the superintendent of the waterworks, they went over and checked up on the city's water system for the past year and found everything to be in order and progressing nicely.

An ordinance establishing set-back lines for various streets was introduced.

A communication was received from the California State Chamber of Commerce, soliciting aid of various cities throughout the state, to try to help reduce the number of accidents which are occurring at grade crossings between public highways and railroads. It is apparent that we are facing a very serious situation in this matter, and it behooves everyone to do what they can to reduce this heavy toll of deaths and injuries. There is an amendment to the California Vehicle Act, effective August 14, 1929, which provides that drivers of all vehicles approaching a railroad crossing, where a warning signal is displayed, shall stop. The State Chamber of Commerce is making a drive to secure support from the different cities to try to enforce this act. The board took no action on the matter, as there are no dangerous crossings in Daly City.

The monthly bills were read and ordered paid.

FIREMEN ENTERTAIN AT CHICKEN DINNER

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Station No. 4, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department, were guests of honor at a delicious chicken dinner given last Saturday night at the fire station on Peoria street by the members of Station 4, the dinner being tastefully prepared by the firemen, who proved themselves wonderful cooks.

After spending considerable time at the table, the floor was cleared for dancing, Mrs. Annie Fonseca, official musician, playing the snappy music.

Those who will long remember this pleasant affair are Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Fenstermacher, Mr. and Mrs. A. Chesney, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Fonseca, Mr. and Mrs. E. Cuneo, Mr. and Mrs. A. Vireno, Mr. and Mrs. J. Viotti, Mr. and Mrs. R. Foppiano, Mr. and Mrs. E. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. George Augustien, Jeff Lee, Henry Rolf and John McGuinn.

REGISTRARS BUSY ENROLLING VOTERS

The work of registering the voters of San Mateo county is going forward as rapidly as possible, and County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese reports a goodly number of the residents of San Mateo county have been registered.

Every resident of the county who expects to vote in the múnicipal election must be registered before March 15. And all voters must register this year, regardless of previous registrations.

The following registration deputies will register voters in Daly City: Grace L. Augustien, 501 Evergreen avenue; Margaret Fahy, 613 Bellevue avenue; Teresa P. Falvey, 314 Hillside boulevard; May Hawkins, 139 Knowles avenue; Ella McKee, 79 Irvington street; Lilly Riddell, 633 Templeton avenue; B. C. Ross, City Clerk, City Hall; Judge Ellis C. Johnson, Justice Court, City Hall; John J. Fahey, 6284 Mission street.

Salads, meats, pies and cakes will be among the delectable dainties on the tables. The committee in charge is composed of Mesdames Cook, Tompsett, Foppiano and Alward.

WELL BABY CLINIC

A committee of women from Woodrow Wilson-Vista Grande P. T. A. met with Crocker P. T. A. last Wednesday afternoon and agreed to sponsor a Well Baby clinic in Daly City. This is to be accomplished in the very near future, under the direction of Mrs. Lohr, our school nurse. Watch this paper for further announcement.

VISIT OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT TO LOCAL SCHOOLS

Officially Miss Pansy J. Abbott visited each classroom of Jefferson district on February 5, spending the entire day.

Both children and teachers were glad to receive her and she appreciated their evident welcome by speaking to them approvingly of their industry, regular attendance, regard for school property, and general respect for their superiors.

She was glad to notice that the children and teachers were co-operating, working together in the utmost harmony. In one particular room she found the children able to take up the work, where teacher left off, to talk to her, and saw them continue it, pleased with her presence. She did not miss the opportunity to compliment them and their teacher for having solved so perfectly the problem of school work and management. It is needless to add that the teacher, often relieved of her duty, never misses a move made or a word said by any of her children. Her great success has come to her through practicing eternal vigilance.

In many other classes Miss Abbott saw numerous exhibitions of unusually successful instruction, and took great pleasure in letting the children and teachers know she observed their efficient work.

The visit, as a whole, did a great deal of good, compensating the teachers for the great efforts they are making and giving them more confidence in their ability. Teachers, like other workers, toil on, day after day, becoming weary and prone to feel the monotony of the regular grind; and when someone, like Miss Abbott, in authority, notices their efforts complimentarily, it's like a ray of sunshine driving away the gloom. They are the better for it, in many ways.

Sometimes, we wonder if we are proceeding in the right way or not, and when a person whose business it is to know, says that the task is being well done, the great burden of doubt is lifted and floats away.

Miss Abbott was so well satisfied that she took the pains to write the following letter to Prof. W. J. Savage, District Supeirntendent of Schools, which speaks for itself. It is published for the benefit of all.

"Having made my official visit to the classrooms of all the schools in the Jefferson elementary district over which you supervise, I feel impelled to express approval both to you and your teachers for the splendid work being done.

"I was particularly impressed with the interest being taken in every individual child, and in the development of a fine spirit of co-operation between pupil and teacher.

"You and your Board of Trustees are managing the funds of your district economically and wisely. You are making a dollar do a full dollar's worth of work.

"I am pleased with the evidence of complete understanding between you as District Superintendent and James Ferguson as principal of the Jefferson Union high school. The students leaving your department and entering his are benefited by the same and are provided with a fuller opportunity to grow into the best type of American citizenship.

The people of your district have just reason to approve of the elementary and high schools and to stand loyally behind both boards of trustees."

ROBBER OF DALY CITY HOMES IS CAPTURED IN STOCKTON

Detective Sergeant Frank Jackson and Detective George Page of the San Francisco police force, assisted by Police Chief Doyle, cleared up three recent burglaries committed in Daly City. On Tuesday last the officers were in town with Jim Watto, alias George Harrison, 18 years of age, who was caught in Stockton last week after committing a burglary there. He had in his possession a revolver that had been stolen from the home of Mrs. J. Damico, of 326 Evergreen aven, the weapon being taken several weeks ago. It was found that in addition to burglarizing the Damico home, he had also entered the homes of A. Hunt, of 119 Santa Barbara avenue, and a home on Evergreen avenue.

DRUIDS ENTERTAIN

Hillcrest Circle, U. A. O. D., under the chairmanship of Mrs. Minnie Bernardi, held a most successful whist party on Monday evening at Masonic Hall, Daly City. The weather was unpleasant and the crowd was not as large as usual, but every one seemed happy and the hostess, Mrs. Lombard, was more than gratified at the result financially of the evening's entertainment.

OUTER MISSION BOOM EXPECTED

The San Francisco Examiner, in the February 22 edition, has a very interesting article of special interest to Daly City people, under the title "Outer Mission Boom Expected."

A lot of street work and other developments have been made in this section in the last two years. The extension and widening of Junieprо Serra boulevard and the construction of Alemany boulevard and the Bernal Cut will also tend to increase the building up of the outer Mission district.

The work already done and the work now under course of construction is hardly a beginning of the great work contemplated and the vast amount of money to be expended for the benefit of the outer Mission district.

And the street to be most benefitted is Mission street, the greatest street in the whole state of California. The people of Daly City in the very near future will realize how fortunate they are to be living in a community toward which all the great arteries of traffic are being built and completed. Mission street is the business center of the entire district, and Daly City will continue to grow and expand rapidly with it.

INTERESTING SERMONS AT BAPTIST CHAPEL

The following will be the services at the Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, next Sunday:

In the morning: Sermon, "How to Become a Christian." A man once wrote his pastor in the following words: "All my life I have been an attendant at church; I would like to be a Christian, but I confess that I have never learned how to set about it." The pastor will in this morning message explain "how to set about it." There are many with their names on the church roll who are only professing Christians and who do not truly possess Him.

In the evening: Sermon, "The Rose Garden of God." Some have supposed that when Christ was praying in Gethsemane that He was praying against the cross and begging to be delivered from dying on the cross. But Christ never did shrink from the cross. He came into the world on purpose to die on the cross and He never shrunk from it. He was afraid He should die in the garden before He came to the cross. The burden on His soul was so great, and produced such an agony, that He felt as if He was on the point of dying. His soul was sorrowful even unto death. But after the angel appeared unto Him, we hear no more of His agony of soul. He prayed for relief from that cup, and His prayer was answered. He became calm, and had no more mental suffering till just as He expired. He had received the very thing for which He asked, as He says, "I knew Thou always hearest me." Christ's Gethsemane was His Rose Garden. God's Rose Garden for man is when he will pray through until the victory of his soul has been reached; when a divine calm sits in and the peace which passeth understanding comes over him. You will want to hear the pastor of Calvary Baptist Chapel speak on this subject next Sunday night.

WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Nation, of 167 Peoria street, entertained a large group of friends last Saturday evening at a delightful Washington's birthday party. The evening was spent in dancing and playing games. Mrs. Bosnos and Mr. Emmet Devine favored the guests with several lovely musical selections on the piano. A tempting midnight supper was served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. McQueen and daughters Helen and Genevieve, Mr. and Mrs. E. Nation, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. Maehl, Mrs. G. Bosnos and son, Mr. and Mrs. M. Nunes and son, Miss E. Cline, Miss Bernice Frenandez, Miss Josephine Frenandez, Ralph Frenandez, Sam Frenandez, Harry Meeks, Anthony Fauchaner, Harold Loyd, John Kelley, Emmet Devine, John Cashman, Miss Helen Nation, Miss Julia Nation, Paul Nation and Jean Nation.

El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, will sponsor a St. Patrick's whist party and dance on Wednesday evening, March 19, in Masonic Temple. Mrs. Margaret Callan Steele, charter president of the Parlor, is chairlady.

Kentfield Estate Less Than $10,000

John Kentfield, deputy sheriff and member of a pioneer Redwood City family, who dropped dead on February 16 in the Sequoia Grill at Redwood City, left an estate valued at less than $10,000, according to the petition filed in Superior Court last Tuesday by the father of the deceased, Edyard E. Kentfield, of San Francisco.

Secretary Wilbur has announced that he has reports of an apparently rich gold strike in Alaska.

THE HIDDEN FIRE HAZARD SCORED

The hidden fire hazard is the one hardest to combat, as the suppression of these hazards cannot be done by members of fire departments, but depends upon building inspectors. One of the most dangerous of these hazards is defective work in the installing of the electrical wiring and the use of cheap electrical fixtures. All joints in electrical wiring should be soldered so as to make perfect contact. Using smaller wires than safety requires for the carrying of the electricity is another of these dangers, as the smaller wires become over-heated and in time burn off the insulation and create fire; and generally fires of this nature occur at night, endangering the lives of people. The cheap fixtures, after being used a short time, become what is called "shorted," and if not noticed become heated and create fire. Also improper methods of installing wires, such as not having them kept the proper distance from all metal and woodwork.

Then we have the defective flue danger. But since the advent of terra cotta chimneys, this danger has become greatly eliminated; but if the terra cotta chimney is not properly erected, it becomes a bad fire hazard, unknown to its users.

A well built house is blocked off at each floor so that fire cannot go from one floor to the floor above through the walls. Many a building has been lost on account of this practice, especially in old buildings that have been wired for electricity years after the building has been built.

There are a great many industries, each with its own problems in fire hazards, but each has a remedy, which if properly applied will reduce the fire risk, and each community should study all the fire hazards within tis boundaires and see that they are properly taken care of, and should there at any time arise any question of doubt, they should take into consultation some one of experience in such matters.

One thing should be borne in mind at all times, and that is that carelessness and neglect are the cause of the great majority of fires. And this can only be overcome by vigilance on the part of the properly constituted authorities.

I would state that despite all efforts, fire losses are increasing to such an extent it has become known as "the nation's greatset crime."
—Victor Savelly, Daly City, Fire Prevention Committee of San Mateo County Firemen's Association.

TRIP TO YOSEMITE FOR WINTER SPORTS

On Friday, February 21, a party from Daly City and San Francisco left for Yosemite Valley to enjoy the winter sports over Saturday and Sunday. Friday a storm had come along and caused it to rain as well as snow in the valley on Saturday, not making it very pleasant to be out at that time. But on Sunday it snowed very heavily and the valley became very beautiful, everything covered with snow at Camp Curry and through the entire valley. So much snow had fallen, and continued to fall, that it was useless to try to clear it away for ice skating, tobogganing, etc., and the winter carnivel was not given. Just the same that did not stop snow fights and a good time for everybody who was there. An interesting thing was to see a bank of several tons of snow leave the mountain-side and crash to the bottom, causing a sound that could be heard for a good distance in the valley. All enjoyed having it snow heavily while there, and taking several pictures. Upon leaving the valley, everybody placed snow all over their cars, it lasting for several hours, gradually losing it when making the turns on the highway.

Among the party were W. Edward Glaeser, M. D., Mrs. Nora Glaeser, Miss Catherine Glaeser, Lewis Glaeser, Mr. and Mrs. F. Garissino, Bert Tredinnick, Miss Lillah Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Evensen, Arthur M. Evensen, Mr. and Mrs. Brendlin and daughter Florine, and others. All report having had a wonderful time, with the hope of all taking another trip for the same sports next year.

"QUESTION NIGHT" IN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

On Sunday evening, at 7:45, the pastor of the Presbyterian chruch will answer the following questions: Can I know where I am going when I die? How can I become a Christian? Can we be saved by doing good? What about those who are not Christians? Isn't one man's guess concerning these things about as good as another's?

When you want to know how to pronounce a word you go to the Dictionary. You can usually find out that way. When you want to know where Kalamazoo is, you consult a map, and if you are clever you can find it in Michigan. We have a religious authority also. The Bible. These questions concerning religion are answered here, and it is from this abiding authority the pastor will answer questions.

The Sunday school will begin an enrollment contest Sunday and many surprises await the scholars attending during the coming weeks.

JEFFERSON HIGH P. T. A. HAS FOUNDER'S DAY PROGRAM

On Thursday evening, February 20, the P. T. A. of Jefferson Union high school held their Founder's day progrom, the following program being given in the auditorium of the high school:

Dance by Frances Poket and Muriel Warren.

Song by Mrs. Millhauser, accompanied by Mildred Swan.

Talk on Founder's Day, given by Mrs. Rothwell of the Second district.

Mrs. Robson of the Hostess Cake Company gave a more than interesting talk on her travels through Egypt and told of the fine qualities of the Hostess cakes.

A sketch called "Easy Terms" was put on by the president of the Humboldt Dramatic class, Miss Rita Penebsky, assisted by Wililam Riley and Max Lorenzen.

All were then invited down stairs to the cooking room, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and coffee, sandwiches, Hostess cake and ice cream were served to a happy gathering.

IF CHINA TELEPHONED AS MUCH AS CHINATOWN DOES

If telephone development in China were proportionately as great with respect to population as it is in the Chinatown section of San Francisco, there would be over 60,000,000 telephones in China.

China, with a population of around 400,000,000 persons or more, occupies an area of 1,532,420 square miles, while Chinatown in San Francisco has 14,000 Chinese in less than a quarter of a square mile. To serve the more than 400,000,000 persons in China there are less than 150,000 telephones, while the 14,000 Chinese in San Francisco's Chinatown are served by a special telephone exchange having 2,320 subscribers. This exchange is connected with all the central offices in the city, and, in addition to the local calls, there are many long distance calls to other Chinese in other Pacific Coast Cities.

SKIDDING AUTOMOBILE PUTS HALF OF CITY IN DARKNESS

Poor visibility and wet pavements plunged half of Burlingame into darkness for a brief while Monday night and sent R. W. Swartz, 1235 Nineteenth aevnue, San Francisco, to Mills Memorial hospital for treatment for a fractured jaw. Swartz declared his machine skidded and crashed into a Pacific Gas and Electric Company power pole, snapping it off.

Warm guests--

when there is heat at a finger's touch

During a social evening, does some member of your family interrupt the party to fuss with the furnace?

With gas fuel burning in your furnace, a thermostat or a push-button regulates the temperature. No annoying trips to the basement. No bother about starting a fire when friends come — a finger's touch gives you instant heat. And any healthful temperature is maintained throughout your home.

With clean gas fuel, the curtains, wall-paper and furniture retain their fresh cleanliness. There is no smoke or soot about your property.

Even though you have no basement, there are fine types of gas-fired heating equipment for your home.

For full details about heating equipment that burns gas fuel, see a heating contractor or telephone or call at our office.

There are men and women who get engrossed in what they are doing, and let their telephones ring a minute or so before they answer.

A natural thing, sometimes, but friends, customers, and business associates are not always forgiving when required to wait.

HONEY DISHES

Those individuals are fortunate who can have a hive or two of bees to keep the family in the most wholesome of sweets. Honey is a sugar that is partly digested and is especially good for the little people who enjoy sweets.

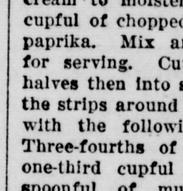
Ambrosia.—Take one cupful of buckwheat honey, one-half cupful of fat, one square of chocolate, three eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half cupful of sour milk, two and one-half cupfuls of flour. Mix and bake in a shallow pan; when cool cover with caramel frosting.

Cheese and Honey Salad.—Take one-half pound of cottage cheese, add cream to moisten, add salt, one-half cupful of chopped nuts and a dash of paprika. Mix and shape into balls for serving. Cut firm peaches into halves then into strips of four. Wrap the strips around the cheese and serve with the following honey dressing: Three-fourths of a cupful of water, one-third cupful of honey, one teaspoonful of mustard, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of flour, the yolks of two eggs. Heat the honey and water, mix the dry ingredients with the vinegar and add to the first mixture; pour a little over the beaten egg and return to the double boiler. Cook until clear. Add one-third cupful of sour whipped cream, just before serving.

Fruit and Flower Pudding.—Take two cupfuls of graham flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one egg, three-fourths of a cupful of raisins, one cupful of sour milk, one-fourth cupful of fat, one-half cupful honey and one egg. Mix and steam two and one-half hours in a buttered mold.

Squabs for Company Dinner.

Squabs are so well liked that one need not fear for their welcome. Split down the back, flatten and brush with butter, salt and pepper, then broil over a hot fire for ten minutes on each side. Serve on a hot platter with buttered lima beans and crisp bacon for a garnish. Corn bread baked in bread stick pan is especially good with this dish.



Creole Squabs.—Split, flatten and dry one squab for each person. Dip them into melted butter and fry until brown. Make a dressing of one cupful of strained tomato juice, two tablespoonfuls of minced green pepper, one tablespoonful of minced onion, a bit of cayenne, one tablespoonful of worcestershire sauce and one tablespoonful of butter. Simmer fifteen minutes and thicken with a little flour. Spread this mixture over long slices of buttered toast, sprinkle with shredded dried beef with a tablespoonful of Parmesan cheese. Lay the broiled or fried squad on top of the toast and place in the oven for a few minutes before serving.

Squabs With Mushrooms.—Prepare the squabs for roasting, buttering them well inside and out. Fill them with mushrooms, adding two tablespoonfuls of butter melted before closing them. Arrange in a deep glass baking dish and roast well covered for fifteen minutes, then let them brown for fifteen minutes without the cover. Serve with triangles of toast and asparagus dipped in mayonnaise.

Squab With Spaghetti.—Line a buttered glass dish with cooked spaghetti that has not been broken. Split two fat squabs down the back, rub with butter and season and place on the spaghetti. Make a sauce of one-half cupful of cream, the yolks of two eggs, salt, pepper, a bit of nutmeg and chopped parsley; thicken with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter blended. Pour this over the squabs and sprinkle with chopped mushrooms and bake in a moderate oven for one hour.

Squab Plate Dinner.—Roast unstuffed, but well buttered inside and out, three or four squabs. Glaze the breasts with the pan gravy. Make eight potato balls and four carrot balls for each squab. Take six small onions the size of the potato balls and cook the vegetables separately in a very little water. If small onions are not to be obtained take the hearts of larger ones. The remainder of the onion may be used for some other dish.

Make a stuffing of bread crumbs, one egg yolk, a tablespoonful of melted butter, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a little thyme. Roll this forcemeat into small balls the same size as the vegetables and brown them in a little butter. Serve on a hot platter, the squab in the center with the balls around it. Pour the juice of the roast squab over the whole.

Heart of Poison Victim Is Missing

Paris.—Jean Galmot, picturesque deputy of French Guinea who before his murder promised his electorate in an impassioned speech that "my heart will never leave you," promised more than he realized.

When the body of Galmot was brought to France for legal examination following his death from poisoning, the doctors were surprised to find the heart was not in the corpse.

Galmot was one of France's unusual characters. Before his election to the chamber of deputies, he was a gold prospector, a trapper, head of a Guinea rum and rosewood trust, and a journalist. On his death bed he insisted he had been poisoned by political enemies.

BRIGANDS TAKE BIG DEATH TOLL

Attack British Vessel and Slay Scores.

Shanghai. — Out of the murky reaches of the Oriental seas comes the latest story of the deadly operations of modern pirates—olive-skinned men who prey upon shipping on the rivers of China. More than four score men, women and children, most of them Chinese, are dead as the result of a raid on the British steamer Haiching, under command of Capt. C. H. Farrar.

The ship was a mass of flames, with the survivors of its crew and passengers huddled on the main deck, when the British destroyer Sterling reached the scene in response to an S O S sent by the radio operator before he was killed.

As usual, the pirates boarded the steamer at the beginning of its journey and posed as passengers until time for the attack. A dozen persons, including several officers of the ship, fell in the first attack.

The surviving officers kept up a constant fire on the pirates until the destroyer arrived, and in the meantime scores of natives drowned when they attempted to launch the lifeboats and escape in the darkness. The pirates, seeing the approach of the war craft, set fire to the ship and leaped into the water. Many of them were captured, however, and executed the next day.

Boy Tests Way to Die and He Goes Too Far

New York.—Death's deep mysteries so fascinated the introspective faculties of John Broberg, 15, Curtis high school athlete, that he fastened on the idea of experimenting with the sensations of dying.

But experiment became actuality and the lad strangled himself to death with strips of a bath towel in his home on Staten Island.

This was the only motive that suggested itself to police. His mother was loath to believe her boy had committed suicide and insisted he was without difficulty in his studies, had no romance and had been in happy mood 45 minutes before she cut down his body and screamed for help.

Neighbors summoned Dr. William Thomas, who said the lad was dead.

Assistant Medical Examiner George Mord recorded the case as suicide. But the mother insisted he could not have killed himself.

In the absence of any other theory, the police decided it was likely the boy had tried to experiment with the sensations of dying, intending to free himself from the noose as he felt death creeping on.

Dressmakers Say Long Skirts Here to Stay

London.—Leading French and English dressmakers and designers care little for the cry raised against long skirts. They say that they are in to stay, and that even sports clothes for the coming spring will be affected.

Evening dresses designed on Regent street and Bond street in London and the Rue de La Paix now trail the ground at the back and sides for several yards, though the majority of them are shorter in front and reveal the leg nearly to the knee.

Sweethearts of 1880 Married in Year 1930

Noblesville, Ind.—A courtship interrupted here 50 years ago has culminated at last in marriage. Charles W. Sapp, then twenty-five, sparked Jessie Stringman, twenty. But they drifted apart, Sapp going West and marrying. Miss Stringman married Jaspar Leeman. Sapp's wife died and he returned here recently. Leeman died sometime ago. Now each having attained three score and ten they have been married and have bought a farm near here.

Girl Injured When Run Over by Towed Auto

Wickware, Wis.—Miss Alice Quaderer will be partially paralyzed for the remainder of her life, physicians say, as a result of being run down by an automobile that was being towed by a team of horses. Miss Quaderer was riding on a farm sled behind which the automobile was being towed when the motor started suddenly and the horses became frightened and ran away. She was thrown from the sled and the automobile ran over her body.

WASHINGTON'S CRITICS

As we in 1930 celebrate the 198th birthday of George Washington, mindful of his inestimable services to the great Republic of which he is truly called the father, it seems almost incredible that he should have been subjected during his lifetime to the most bitter and violent attacks by military and civil opponents.

Yet such was the case. Perhaps no worthy man in the history of our country was ever so viciously assailed as was Washington, both during the Revolutionary War and throughout his subsequent career as President.

The famous and infamous "Conway cabal," composed of disgruntled officers of the Continental Army, sought to have Washington removed from his position of commander-in-chief in favor of General Gates. The plan failed, but the intrigue of his enemies made Washington's difficult task much harder at a critical time of the war.

Even when he had finished his public life, after serving eight years as President, in fact upon the very day of his leaving that high office, an editorial appeared in a Philadelphia newspaper containing the following:

"This ought to be a day of jubilee in the United States. If ever a nation was debauched by a man, the American nation has been debauched by Washington. Let his conduct be an example to future ages: let the history of the Federal goverment instruct mankind that the mask of patriotism may be worn to conceal the foulest designs against the liberties of the people."

Washington's conduct has been indeed "an example to future ages," but not the horrible example which the Philadelphia scribbler had in mind. In spite of all criticism and abuse, the name and fame of George Washington have come down to us as an imperishable national heritage.

He was human; he was not a saint; but what he accomplished so far outweighs any minor shortcomings that his grateful countrymen have written his faults upon the sand and his virtues upon their hearts.

SOME EXCELLENT ADVICE

The Oswego, Oregon, Review runs the following interesting quotation from the American Banker's Magazine, using it as an advertisement:

"No business in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business mentioned somewhre in its columns.

"This applies to all kinds of business and professional men. It does not mean that you should have a whole, half or even a quarter page ad in each issue of the paper, but your name should be mentioned, if you do not use more than a two-line space.

A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in the town by looking at a paper. That is the best possible town advertiser.

The man who does ont advertise his business does an injustice to himself and the town. The life of a town depends upon the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business man."

Lindberg has become an enthusiast about gliders, but we doubt that he will try to duplicate his New York-Paris flight in one of them.

A PATRIOT'S CREED

"The American's Creed," adopted by Congress in 1919, is not as well known to the citizens of the country as it should be.

This creed was selected through a contest, open to all Americans, for the purpose of securing "the best summary of the political faith of America." The author of the successful manuscript was Wm. Tyler Page, a decendant of President Tyler.

The phrases composing it are taken from the Preamble and the Constitution of the United States, the Declaration of Independence, the Oath of Allegiance and from utterances of distinguished patriots, all lofty sentiment, as follows:

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

"I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies."

A HEARTLESS PROGRAM

One of the greatest tragedies in the history of the human race is passing into a new phase in Russia, according to the London Observer, whose Moscow correspondent describes the situtation and quotes Russian newspapers in support of his statements.

This latest development of the Soviet program is the result of resolutions providing that by the spring of 1932 all grain-producing peasants must give up their lands and join the government collective farms.

This will lead to the virtual extermination of the "kulaks," or well-to-do peasants, who are resisting the confiscation of their lands. The newspaper Prevada, official Soviet organ, admits:

"The struggle assumes especially cruel forms, because the wholesale collectivization of individual peasant farms means death to the kulaks. The collective farms, to which the kulak is not admitted, must declare a fight to the death on him, and in the end must wipe him off the face of the earth."

Another Soviet newspaper says:

"What will the kulaks do after they are politically dissolved as a class? To us this is of no interest. Let them throw themselves under the first passing automobile or spend the rest of their lives in exile. They may do as they wish. All we care is that they should disappear from our midst."

To a disinterested person it would seem that the Soviet leaders, more heartless and cruel than any former czar, deliberately plan the utter destruction of all who oppose their communistic program.

TOO MUCH REGULATION

Undue centralization of authority in the Federal government is most undesirable, in the opinion of Governor Christianson of Minnesota, who sees a menace in the growth of bureaucracy which is usurping the power rigthfully belonging to the individual states.

In a recent article he declares that we have enough red tape, delay and waste now, and will have more of these, with perhaps ccrruption to boot, if the present trend toward centralization is permitted to continue. Referring to the numerous commissions and regulatory bodies now functioning in Washington for the control of commerce and indutry, Governor Christianson says:

"While I approve of measures by which business is regulated wisely and controlled firmly, I emphatically disapprove of the numerous and petty regulations with which little bureaucrats in Washington annoy and harass business, big and little."

Every business man is subjected to numerous annoyances through these foolish regulations and requirements, none of which have any bearing upon the public welfare or serve any purpose whatever except to make more government jobs, it is contended.

MOTORISTS TAGGED

Among the measures designed to reduce automobile accidents, a new Connecticut law will be watched with considerable interest. It provides different insurance rates for various classe of motorists.

Those whose driving records indicate them to be especially competent and careful are granted a reduction from the regular insurance rates; the next class pay the standard insurance fee; those found to have been involved in minor accidents and slight violations of traffic rules must pay a premium of 10 per cent; those who have had serious accidents are penalized 25 per cent, while those who are shown to have been at fault in highly serious and flagrantly avoidable accidents must pay an additional premium of 50 per cent for their insurance.

The new law has not been in effect long enough to enable one to judge of its results, but it seems to be based upon sound principles and may prove to be of some measurable benefit in reducing tutomobile accidents.

PARROTS, FIRE AND ACCIDENTS

"It is with mixed emotions that one reads of the order for the exclusion of parrots from our previously hospitable shores," says the Portland (Oregon) Oregonian. This action is the result of a disease said to be brought in by parrots and which recently caused the death of several persons.

While the parrots frightened us into hysterics over a few deaths attributed to them, we go calmly in our various ways unmindful of 15,000 persons burned to death each year in fires, and some 50,000 pesons killed in automobile accidents. In other words, nearly 45,000 lives snuffed out annually by causes which are almost wholly preventable, do not move us to corrective action, but a sensational death due to a sensational cause arouses our immediate interest.

By the same token that it is good judgment to protect the people from needless diseases, it is also good judgment to focus public attention on the lives and property that can be saved annually by a little care in the use of fire and automobiles.

If the parrot incident could only call public attention to the incongruousness of the present situation, it would be of lasting benefit to all humanity.

A Washington daily has as its motto, "All the Facts; No Opinion." Some contemporaries might counter with "All Opinion; No Facts."

WILES OF WOMEN

Whatever one may think of the present female habits of painting, penciling, dyeing and the like, it must be admitted that while the effects obtained may be to a degree deceptive, there is no attempt made to conceal the fact that artificial aids to beauty are employed.

Even the least sophisticated of men are aware that art is brought to the aid of nature with the utmost frankness. Whether the effects produced really lend charm to the modern woman is largely a matter of individual opinion.

In former times women who employed cunning devices to lure the male sex were sternly frowned upon. A Massachusetts law of 1634 forbade the wearing of "any apparell, either woolen, silke or lynnen, with any lace on it, or silver, golde or silver thread." The English parliament in 1770 passed an act providing "that any woman who shall entice into marriage any of His Majesty's subjects by means of perfume, false hair or false hips shall be condemned as a sorceress and the marriage shall be declared null and void."

Since those days customs have changed greatly, but human nature has not.

COUNTY BUSINESS CENSUS TO BE COMPLETED SOON

The business and industrial census for San Mateo and Burlingame and throughout the Second township of San Mateo county, being taken in connection with the regular federal population count this year, should be finished within 30 days, it has been announced by W. B. Woolridge, of San Mateo, who is in charge. Mr. Woolridge has been working in the San Mateo business district this week and will finish in about ten days, it is estimated. Burlingame and Broadway will follow. Then will come San Carlos and Belmont. Compilation of the figures will require several days, it is said.

The information asked of merchants and others is held confidential by the government so far as individual records are concerned. Totals for the counties and cities are all that will be made public, it is announced.

WERDER HAS PLAN FOR HOME BUYING

County Purchasing Agent Ernest Werder has pledged his support to the Chambers of Commerce of the county in a movement to have the county buy as many of its supplies from home merchants as possible, says the San Mateo Times.

Werder said he would submit a plan to Howard I. Wood, secretary-manager of the Redwood chamber, whereby mimeographed lists of all the general supplies bought by the county will be sent to San Mateo county chambers for distribution to the merchants. The merchants will be requested to notify Werder as to what they are interested in selling to the county, so that Werder will be in a position to ask for bids from those merchants.

"It is a physical impossibility to ask a bid from every merchant in the county every time a purchase is made, and in several instances, hospital supplies for instance, San Mateo county dealers are not in a position to bid," Purchasing Agent Werder said.

Mr. Werder believes his plan is practical and would be fair to all the merchants, and believes it will meet with the approval of the chambers of commerce.

QUOTA FOR MEXICANS URGED AT HEARING

Labor conditions in the Southwest and West are becoming intolerable because of the employment at low wages of immigrants from Mexico, according to telegrams, letters and newspaper statements read before the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization by Representative Albert Johnson, of Washington, and Representative John C. Box, of Texas.

Influx of immigrants from Mexico, Canada and countries in the West Indies is an economic rather than a racial problem, according to testimony of Richard M. Bradley, an investment banker of Boston, who opened the hearing with a statement compiled in collaboration with Thomas Nixon Carver, an economist of Harvard University. The statement dealt with immigration problems as a whole and their effect on labor conditions in New England. Mr. Bradley advocated that the present quota system of admitting aliens be made applicable to Mexico, Canada and countries in the West Indies group.

He also favored the admission of certain skilled laborers for seasonal employment, but only under visas approved by the governor or some other constituted authority in the state where the laborers are desired.

Mr. Bradley declared that 80,000 immigrants into Massachusetts have taken jobs away from Americans. In New England, towns have been decimated by the employment of cheap foreign labor.

Grover C. Wilmoth, a Federal immigration inspector, said a larger immigration force is needed along the Mexican border. He minimized previous testimony that the supply of native labor in the Southwest was inadequate because of climate and other conditions more favorable to the Mexican. He cited instances in which railroads, instead of hiring Mexicans in laying rails, have employed machinery.

He said that the quota restrictions might possibly work some hardship on crop production, as some farmers are accustomed to the Mexican type of labor. He favored the admission of certain types of Mexican laborers for seasonal employment.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath signals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

John's Mother Praises Doctor

There isn't a mother living who won't agree that no half-sick child should be the subject for an experiment with medicines of uncertain merit. When your child is bilious, headachy, half-sick, feverish, restless, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy, you know that nine times out of ten it's a sign his little stomach and bowels need purging. And when you know that for over fifty years leading physicians have endorsed one preparation for this condition, there doesn't seem to be any reason for "trying" things.

Rich, fruity California Fig Syrup clears the little stomach and bowels gently, harmlessly and in a hurry. It regulates the bowels, gives tone and strength to them and to the stomach; and helps to give your child new strength, energy and vitality. Thousands of Western mothers praise it. Mrs. Joseph W. Hill, 4306 Bedford Ave., Omaha, Nebraska, says: "I'll never forget the doctor who got me to give my baby boy, John, California Fig Syrup. Nothing else seemed to help his weak bowels. That was when he was just a baby. He suffered a good deal before I gave him Fig Syrup, but it stopped his trouble quick. I have used it with him for colds and little upset spells ever since. I consider him a Fig Syrup boy."

Insist on the genuine article. See that the carton bears the word "California." Over four million bottles used a year.

The Crippled Lady of Peribonka

By James Oliver Curwood

WNU Service
(©, 1929, Doubleday, Doran & Co., Inc.)

STORY FROM THE START

Introducing some of the people of the pretty little French-Canadian village of Peribonka, particularly the Crippled Lady, idol of the simple inhabitants. Paul Kirke is a descendant of a sister of Molly Brant, sister of Joseph Brant, great Indian chief. He has inherited many Indian characteristics. His father is a powerful New York financier. Paul marries Claire Durand, daughter of his father's partner. He is in charge of engineering work near Peribonka. Paul's wife is in Europe. She dislikes the woods.

Behind her courage was a smoldering depth of pain. Paul thought she looked like an angel as she sat opposite him, with the desk between them—like an exquisite, white-faced nun he had see in the Ursuline convent in Quebec.

"Yes, she is a wonderful woman," he said, thinking only vaguely of his wife. "All women are wonderful. And especially—mothers."

He knew she had come to talk to him about her mother. Carla did not flinch when he brought her mission home to her in this way. She bowed her head a little, then her eyes came back to him with a misty glow in them.

"I don't like to add to your worries," she said. "But it seems necessary. I don't want to go to any other—but you. I think you will help me—a little."

"If my life could save your mother I would give it," said Paul.

His words broke through her calm for a moment.

"I have come to ask if you will take me over to Peribonka tomorrow and help me arrange for a little plot of ground," she said, tightening her hands in her lap. "My mother loves Peribonka. In so many ways it has reminded her of the village where she was born and from which my father brought her to America. We have dreamed of living there some day, for I love it, too. Now that mother is going to die, she wants to be buried there. Tomorrow I want to arrange for a place in the cemetery, as near the river as possible. She told me today just where she would like to rest, in a little corner that was overgrown with wild honeysuckle when we were there last. She is so eager to get it, so happy and smiling and unafraid in planning for it—so wonderful—such a mother—that last night I asked God to let me die and go with her."

Looking into her bravely clear and tearless eyes, Paul felt himself, for a moment, unable to answer her. Then he said:

"We will go tomorrow, Carla. But it will be a long time before anything happens. It may be—it won't happen at all. Doctors are not infallible Sometimes—"

Carla smiled at him. Her look of gratitude transfigured her face.

"Thank you," she said gently. "It gives me greater courage to know that you are hoping for me like that. My mother says the doctors are wrong. That is why I want to go to Peribonka tomorrow. Mother wants to be with me as long as she can, but she insists that the time is very short, much shorter than the doctors have said."

"You believe that?"

"I must," Carla was looking beyond him, as if in the distance were a vision which it would be impossible for him to see. "I try not to believe, but it comes over me and holds me. It isn't just fear."

"I am going to write for Miss Wixom to come and take charge of the children," said Paul. "You must be with your mother without interruption."

Carla drew herself together with a little shock.

"Please don't. I must have the work—the pleasure—the inspiration of the children. Mother wants it that way too. She sits in her window, and I can see her from the schoolhouse, and we wave our hands at each other every little while. She can see the children, and they are always thinking about her. Even during hours they don't forget. You see, they are as much mother's as mine, and we cannot turn them over to Miss Wixom. Mother and I need them. You won't send for Miss Wixom—until it is necessary?"

"No."

As she rose from her chair she took the picture of Paul's wife from the desk and stood looking at it with her back turned to the light coming through the window. Thus Paul could see them both—the profile of Carla, her exquisitely cut features, the grace and beauty of her head, and his wife smiling up at her out of the picture. After a moment Carla smiled gently in return.

"When is she coming home?" she asked.

"I don't know. She doesn't keep me in touch with her plans. Sometime before Christmas, I think."

He wondered why the note of bitterness persisted in coming into his voice when he spoke of his wife. It annoyed him. He tried to keep it back. Yet it would come out.

"She likes to surprise me," he added, walking around the end of his desk to stand beside Carla. "When the time comes I will get a telegram from her saying she is on board ship or in New York. 'Home, Paul,' she said last time. 'When are you coming to see me?' I wish she loved children as you love them."

"All women love children," replied Carla mysteriously.

"No, she doesn't. I've wanted a lot of them. Boys, mostly. Claire could be such a wonderful mother."

"She will be, some day," said Carla. "I saw the painting of it in her face when she was here, and I see it now—shining in her eyes—in this picture. She has a soul as deep as the sea, Mr. Kirke, and she must love children!"

She replaced the picture on the desk, nd Paul helped her again with her raincoat.

"May I go with you?" he asked. "Like the children, I love your mother."

"Oh!"

The word escaped her lips, and the eagerness of it made his heart tingle.

"You mean that? You are not saying it just to be good to me? You love my mother?"

"Yes. Next to my own mother, who has been away from me so long."

He could not understand what he saw in her face. It was as if a flame had suddenly thrown a glow upon it.

"We Will Go Tomorrow, Carla. But It Will Be a Long Time Before Anything Happens."

They went out into the rain, and on the narrow cinder path Carla's arm touched Paul's. A soothing and pleasurable sensation accompanied the gentle pressure of it, and he glanced down at her head near his shoulder, imprisoned in its hood He could see the silken mesh of her long lashes gathering the rain mist.

A few minutes later the mother welcomed him from her chair near the window, from which she could see Carla's school. Carla had taken his hat and coat. A new spirit had entered the house with her. She was smiling, kissed her mother, chirruped a few notes to a bird in a cage as she went for a moment into the kitchen. What a magnificent fight! The cottage was filled with birds and flowers. Out where Carla had gone a canary was singing. A sleepy cat was purring on a cushion at Mrs. Haldan's feet. In a small grate a fire was burning. Contentment and happiness, and not the shadow of death, seemed triumphant about him.

Sea Riddle Unanswered

If you were plumbing the depths of the sea in the Antarctic and your sounding machine came to a sudden stop at about 1,000 fathoms and as suddenly started again and ran on another 1,000 fathoms or so, what would be your explanation?

Twice this has happened in recent Antarctic exploration and the scientists who were present do not know how to explain it. A very easy answer would be that the sounding weight landed on a whale and then, falling off, resumed its bottomward journey.

But the trouble with this explanation is that 1,000 fathoms is pretty deep for a surface creature like a whale. Pressures are enormous down there.

First Lady's Worries

Mrs. John Adams, wife of the second President, found it necessary to bring with her much of her own china when she took over the duties of first lady, and with disastrous results to the china, judging from a letter written to a member of her family shortly after her arrival, deploring the fact that "many things were broken or stolen." Her efforts to replace the missing pieces evidently were fruitless, for she remarked later in the letter that "Georgetown affords nothing."—Detroit News.

Seeing Big League BASEBALL

By BILLY EVANS

Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

It has been my experience, as an umpire, that the better ball players, I might say the stars of the game, are the easiest to handle. The mediocre player with limited possibilities, the veteran who is slipping and the youngster who is being carried away by his own self importance, are by far the hardest class of players to manage. The player with ability realizes that the umpire is a part of the game, earning a livelihood in the same profession and is content for the most part to let him render his decisions without any serious difference of opinion. It was the unusual for great pitchers like Mathewson, Johnson, Alexander, Young and others of that type to take issue with the umpire. Occasionally they offered a slight protest to some ruling on balls or strikes and an umpire usually doubted the correctness of the ruling when such a protest was mildly made. The umpire knew the protest was based on an honest belief.

Ty Cobb stands out as the greatest star of all time, yet despite his greatness, Cobb was not a hard man to get along with if the umpire adopted the proper tactics.

Cobb was smart, had plenty initiative and was aggressive. An umpire couldn't get anywhere fighting Cobb. Having the last word he could win the argument by chasing him from the field, but often there are other methods that will achieve the desired result without ejecting the player from the game. In reality, not until Cobb became manager of the Detroit club did he have any trouble with the American league staff of umpires Like all players, he would occasionally get the gate but the next day it would be forgotten. The additional duties of manager as well as star player, the added responsibilities, made for Cobb a greater difference of opinion with umpires than he ever had as player. The keen mind of Cobb as manager couldn't always get itself on a level with some player who failed to make the proper play—pulled a "bone."

Ty Cobb.

From his position in center field he would often trot in to take the player, who had offended, to task. Such a performance took time, delayed the game. The umpires received orders from Mr. Johnson that such a practice would have to be cut down to the minimum if not actually stopped.

I didn't see the Detroit club for several weeks after the order had been issued, and I noted that Ty had been chased several times in the interim because he persisted in jogging in from center field. As I have said before, Cobb was aggressive and similar tactics by the umpire in charge seldom made for a solution of an argument in which he was involved. To threaten Cobb with expulsion merely stirred up trouble and invariably caused you to so act, regardless of your wishes in the matter. I decided that if Cobb persisted in coming in from center field when I met up with his club, I would have to adopt other tactics than strong arm methods. He didn't disappoint me. The first time he came in I called him aside.

"Ty, you are well aware that the umpires have a bulletin about you wearing a path from center field to the pitcher's box on all the American league parks." He smiled slightly.

"You also know part of this crowd is on you, and would be tickled if I sent you to the club house. A majority of the crowd came out to see you play. No one came out to see me umpire. My drawing power today is limited to a pass for two." The smile widened a bit.

"Such being the case I don't want to chase you unless you give me no other alternative. I've got my orders and if you persist in disobeying them, there is nothing left for me to do but banish you if I want to keep on umpiring in the American league."

Cobb was on his way to the outfield before I had finished. He realized that I was trying to be reasonable, and not once during the rest of the series did we have the slightest disagreement over the policy of trying to wear out the grass from center field to second base.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

Plans for a yacht harbor at Coyote Point, midway between Burlingame and San Mateo, were revealed by the San Mateo Chamber of Commerce. A. W. Deuel, president of the San Francisco Bay Bridge Company, is one of the leading backers of the project.

While walking along a new stretch of state highway between Mt. Brow and Columbia recently, Fred Dambacher of Springfield picked up a specimen of quartz which contained a little more than $30 worth or gold.

A campaign to have designated as the location for a school of instruction for state traffic officers has been launched by Red Bluff business men, and J. J. Borree, inspector in charge of traffic schools, has declared that the city's petition will be given every consideration. Red Bluff has already been designated as the headquarters for the district inspector, and it is pointed out that, being at the hub of the highway system in northern California, Red Bluff is within easy reach of all officers in northern California.

Bank and corporation franchise taxes for the current fiscal year will bring approximately $6,000,000 into the coffers of the state, it was estimated by Reynold E. Blight, state franchise tax commissioner. He said he expected to receive 35,000 returns before the March 15 deadline. Return blanks have been mailed by Blight to banks and corporations having a taxable year coinciding with the calendar year. Every corporation doing business in the state is required by law to make its return within two months and fifteen days after the close of its fiscal year, Blight pointed out, and the maximum tax is $25. Penalties are provided in the law for failure to transmit a return.

The city of Richmond had instructed H. J. Brunnier, San Francisco engineer, to prepare plans for repairing municipal dock No. 2, on the inner harbor, damaged by fire last November. The city has settled with an insurance company for $7799, estimated damage to the dock.

Safeguarding California watersheds as the best protective measures for the state's forestry and water resources was recommended by conservationists representing a score of organizations after a session in the capital assembly chambers in Sacramento. Endorsing a policy of broader public education in fire prevention, the delegates, representing all sections of the state, pledged unqualified support to the State Forestry Board in its conservation program for 1930. Resolutions passed by the group asked that California, as an obligation in protecting its watersheds, immediately carry out a complete plan of forest safeguard.

A marked increase in natural gas wastage in California during 1929 was reported by Claude C. Brown, gas commissioner for the State Railroad Commission. The increase was declared, however, to be largely due to the enormous jump in production from Kettleman Hills and other new fields. "The past year stands out as one of the great acomplishments and expansion in the natural gas industry in California," Brown stated. "The production for 1929 was 557 billion cubic feet. Of this 248 billion cubic feet were blown off in the air. In 1928, the production was 317 billion cubic feet, with 239 billion wasted."

Angels Camp, at one time heavy gold producer, is excited over the announcement that Domingo Rolleri has completed arrangements with a company to commence operations on several quartz claims in the Albany district. The claims embrace the Big Springs, Marble Springs, Bullion, Morning Star and Gold Leaf mines.

Fresno city officials, gratified with the California Superior Court's decision favoring Fresno city in litigation over the proposed municipal ownership of the local system of the California Water Service Company, declared that they were determined to bring to a conclusion their program for early acquisition of the properties by the city. Mayor Leymel announced that the city would continue its fight for the purchase of the water system in spite of the service company's threat to take the case before the United States Supreme Court.

That a complete course in aviation, except for actual flying, will be given at the Santa Rosa high school is possible. Under a plan advocated by the State chamber of commerce, Principal Gardiner Spring announced, the course may be added to the curriculum there at an early date.

Directors of the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce had decided to appear before the County Board of Supervisors at an early date to urge the endorsement of a Sonoma County State Fair exhibit this year. Frank Sandercock, E. U. White and Secretary G. Lansing Hurd were named as a committee to appear before the board.

The five leading historic spots of Shasta County will be selected from a list of fifty places by the Trails of '49 committee at Redding. Each spot so selected will then be marked by a huge native boulder with proper bronze plaque and inscription. Art students at the Shasta Union High School will compete in designing a special Shasta design for the plaques.

A unit of the new infantry regiment being organized by the California National Guard in northern California may be secured by Eureka. State officers of the National Guard are making the survey.

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast, because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any drugstore.

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

Much has been said about fish, but how few give thought to the luscious clam resident on our own Pacific Coast.

They are inhabitants of all of the favorable beaches, beginning at Half Moon Bay, where only few are found, and south to such beaches that are exposed and subject to the washing and pounding of the surf.

Monterey Bay supplies enough to support a commercial fishery, Moss Landing is also favored, but too far out to be dug by amateurs, but at Pismo, Oceano and Morrow, they are abundant and in the reach of all.

A six-tine fork which can be hired for a few cents locally, is used at Pismo, where walking along the surf line, prodding the fork in the sand, an obstruction is felt, and there dig. The chances are great, a juicy bivalve awaits you.

Clams, as well as all sea food, are diminishing, as is evidenced by the comparative catch. In 1918 there was marketed 687,000 pounds, while in 1926 this was reduced to 274,000 pounds.

The above figures are taken from Fish and Game Commission statistics, but if the total was known it would be much greater, because amateurs probably gather more than the commercial fisheries, and of this no record is possible.

Restrictive legislation began in 1911 with a limit of 200 per person, with gradual reductions, until today only fifteen per person is allowed, and all shipping of clams by common carrier is prohibited.

Owing to the immobility of clams, a study of the effects of over-fishing and spawning is comparatively easy and accurate, and where a certain dimension is marked off and protected, the data obtained is reliable.

Nature has provided marks to distinguish age, and while a clam grows very slowly in winter and the summer growth is rapid, yet the shells show a series of annual rings darker in color in winter and more translucent.

The eggs and sperm are so small that a compound microscope and laboratory conditions are necessary for satisfactory examination, and while this clam is hermatphroditic, producing both eggs and sperm, the numbers are enormous, estimated at 75,000,000.

Before the clams were affected by the fishery they were so numerous that at Oceano they formed a pavement a few inches below the surface of the sand, and not many years back the method of harvesting at Pismo was with a horse-drawn plow.

Among the natural enemies of the clam are birds, rays, starfish and various marine snails. Gulls may be seen feeding on the injured or very small sizes, but only when dug by fishermen, as no birds can obtain undisturbed clams.

The shell of the adult is so hard that it is proof against attack so it is fair to assume that man is the worst enemy, and emphasizes the importance of conservation if the precious Pismo clam is to be preserved.

HOW THE FILMS TALK

What makes the movies talk?

That is the question hundreds of fans are asking, and it seems almost as much a mystery as it was when talking pictures first came into vogue three years ago.

The manager of the State Theatre, who has recently installed the Western Electric Sound System in the State Theatre, offers a clear-cut explanation of the process by which talking pictures are recorded and reproduced.

"There are two methods of recording and reproducing, generaly referred to as the film and the disc method," he explained.

"With the film method the sound record consists of a band about one-eighth of an inch wide, called the sound track, which runs down one side of the film and consists of microscopic lines. The density of these lines depends upon the loudness of the sound, so that the greater the contract between light and dark lines, the louder will be the sound. In other respects the film resembles the ordinary kind of film.

"The disc method employs disc records that are similar to the best types of phonograph records, except that they are much larger and run at about half the speed of a phonograph record. In this way it is able to play through a whole reel. The film used with the disc method resembles an ordinary film except that it has special markings at the beginning of a reel to give the starting point for the disc synchronization."

By providinig both the film and disc method of reproducing in the State Theatre, the management will be able to give the motion picture fans the best talking picture entertainment turned out by every producer in Hollywood.

TANFORAN RACE TRACK BUILDER PASSES AWAY

A. A. Allen, builder of the Tanforan race track, died Monday at his home near Point Lobos, where he had resided since 1897. He was 70 years of age.

Allen, who was president of the Monterey Bank and Monterey Canning Company, was formerly a race-track builder of national reputation. In addition to building the Tanforan track he superintended its rebuilding in 1922. MARCHETTI PLANE FIRM SUED

A suit to collect $2,437.21 from the Marchetti Motor Patents, Inc., S. S. Sorrenti, and four "John Does," was filed in the Superior Court last Tuesday by Paul Ceragioli and Augusto Montini, contractors, who claim that amount is due for the construction of two concrete and steel buildings for the airplane manufacturing company near the Bayshore highway, north of Mills field airport.

A writer describes the modern young woman as "being self-supporting, independent, fearless, and determined to take orders from no one except in the line of employment." It might be added that even in the line of employment few of them exhibit servility to any alarming extent.

SMILES

Smile a little, smile a little,
As you go along.
Not alone when life is pleasant,
But when things go wrong.
Care delights to see you frowning,
Loves to hear you sigh;
Turn a smiling face upon her,
Quick the dame will fly.

Smile a little, smile a little,
All along the road;
Every life must have its burden,
Every heart its load.
Why sit down in gloom and darkness,
With your grief to sup?
As you drink Fate's bitter tonic,
Smile across the cup.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Miss Ilse Bahrmann, Austrian movie star who specializes in aviation pictures is believed to have had more flying experience than any other actress.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 3 FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1930 NUMBER 51

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Optimist: "I can see good in anything."

The other Fellow: "Can you see good in a movie theater when you first go in?"

Farmer: "The new Scotchman down the line has grubbed up all the honeysuckle vine around his front porch."

His Wife: "Why?"

Farmer: "He can't sleep with the good scent going to waste."

"We've had the best time playing postman," exclaimed the small hopeful of the family. "We gave a letter to every lady in the block."

"But where did you get the letters, dear?"

"Oh, we found 'em in your trunk in the attic, all tied up with a blue ribbon."

Teacher: "Isaac, what's an operetta?"

Isaac: "It's a girl who works for the telephone company."

First Scot: "Here's the bill for the plumbing job I did for you. As you're a friend of mine, I'm only charging you $25."

Second Scot: "Well, all I can say is, I'm mighty glad I'm no relation."

Judge: "What pretext had your husband for beating you?"

Complainant: "He didn't have any pretext. He only had a stick."

How He Got It

Farmer: "You've got a cold."

Collegiate Tramp: "Yeah."

Farmer: "How did you get it?"

Tramp: "Slept in a field last night and someone left the gate open."
